SENTENCED FOR MURDER
Wanted in Oklahoma for His Escape from Prison
Labor Camp.

(By the Associated Press)
LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 26.—Julius Sullivan, Oklahoma outlaw who shot and killed Deputy United States Marshal J. W. Casey at Harrison two weeks ago, escaped from three officers who were bringing him to the penitentiary to await execution at 1:40 o'clock this morning at Kennett, Arkansas. Sullivan was convicted of Casey's murder at Harrison last week and Tuesday was sentenced to the electric chair September 21.

When he escaped Sullivan was shackled and handcuffed. Posses were at once formed at Kennett and were reported on Sullivan's trail using blood hounds. Rewards for Sullivan's capture, dead or alive, have been offered.

Sullivan escaped while the officers and he were waiting at Kennett station between trains. The officers shackled him to a bench, and according to the report received here, were said to have been asleep. Sullivan is supposed to have had 10 minutes start when the officers discovered he was missing. The station agent said he heard chains clanking outside the station half an hour before the escape was discovered, but supposed they were on some mule or cow.

Sullivan killed Casey as the latter was placing him in the Harrison jail after Sullivan had sawed his way out. He was awaiting trial for highway robbery at the time of the escape and killing.

The fugitive is believed to be making his way westward. Sullivan over-powered by his intended victims when he is alleged to have held up a party of tourists near Harrison July 5, was placed in the Boone county jail at Harrison, but sawed his way out July 16. After a pursuit he was cornered under a house and recaptured.

Carey took Sullivan back to the county jail and as he was turning the key to the cell in which the prisoner had been placed, Sullivan grabbed Casey's pistol from the holster and shot the officer three times inflicting fatal wounds. Other officers rushed into the jail and Sullivan surrendered.

A crowd in Harrison was reported to have threatened to lynch Sullivan but a speedy trial was promised and no attempt at mob violence was made.

Sullivan was found guilty of murder after a trial last Saturday and the death sentence was imposed Monday.

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 26.—Eules Sullivan, who escaped from Arkansas authorities today while being taken to the state penitentiary under sentence of death, was one of three convicts who made their get away from the prison camp on the state capitol grounds here June 28.

At that time he was serving a sentence of 10 years for robbery in Creek county. Sullivan, was among the detail of several scores of prisoners brought here from the state penitentiary at McAlester for improvement work on the capitol grounds.

City Coffers in Waiting for New Budget for Year

The City of Ada is just not functioning financially, according to the statement of Charlie Deaver, city finance commissioner.

The outstanding warrants will have to wait until the action of the excise board, scheduled to meet here Saturday, before they stand a chance of payment, Deaver said.

While the excise board swings into session Saturday, all indications point to a recess session awaiting the action of the state board of equalization, which may alter the tax valuations in the county.

Deaver estimated that the city would not be in a position to resume financial independence until the latter part of August.

The last funds of the city administration were paid out July 1, the end of the fiscal year.

CALL SPECIAL POLICE FOR MURDER HEARING

(By the Associated Press)
CUMBERLAND, C. H., Va., July 26.—With special police encamped here to preserve order, the first legal skirmish in the case of Largin Garrett and R. O. Garrett, brothers, charged with the murder of Rev. Sylvester Pierce, was scheduled for today. The first action was expected to be a motion by the prosecution for a change of venue which is strenuously opposed by the defense.

Twenty special police recruited from the forces of several cities at the direction of Gov. Trinkle arrived last night and pitched camp. All persons entering the court room will be searched for arms, their leader announced.

Funds for the prosecution of the case have been raised in several churches over which Rev. Pierce presided.

GRADE STUDENTS COMPLETE TERM

Thirty-Seven Receive Certificates at Close of Years Work.

With fitting exercises thirty-seven ward school students received certificates as award for a summer of achievement in school work in exercises held at the high school auditorium.

The graduating class was presented with certificates by J. E. Hickman, superintendent of city schools, following short talks by Professor W. A. Hill and Robert F. Wilburn, Board member.

The graduating class represents in majority a group of students doing extra work to complete a semester's advanced work, which means the gaining of a school year credit by a group of students. A few of the number received credit for work in which they had failed during the past season.

Superintendent Hickman was well pleased with the work done in the ward school summer school session, saying that the opportunity to help the student anxious for advancement more than repaid the effort extended in holding the school for the year.

There were nineteen boys and eighteen girls in the graduating class.

Following is a list of pupils of the eighth grade, summer session who were entitled to eighth grade certificates.

Phil Anderson, Naomi Bell, Wyn Burniger, Dessie Butler, Lynn Cales Varrol Case, Chester Cotten, Vela Cox, Mildred Dennis, Raymond Duke, Harrow Duvall, Newman Edmiston, Hubert Fuller, Pauline Hart, Nora Gillmore, Clifford Johnson, Audrey Ken, George Kitchell, Cecil Laugh, Beach Laselle, Minnie Lee Martin, J. "Flapper Venus" Routs Burglars: Saves "Pa's" Clothes And Jewels

NEW YORK, July 26.—Miss Alice Pundt, petite and artistic with nineteen summers behind her, is a sculptor, painter and musician. Also she is just about the veriest piece of femininity in the neighborhood of 241 East 18th street and the contiguous territory, too, as far as that is concerned.

This mite of loveliness has her studio in her father's apartment and there she is wont to pursue her artistic activities.

She was alone and working on a statue when a noise distracted her. Looking up she saw an intruder with an armful of her father's clothing.

Did she faint? She did not. She screamed. The intruder fled, but only with an irate and flying artist at his heels.

Down the street they ran. Patrolman Frielich joined in the chase. Miss Pundt grabbed him and the officer held him.

From his pockets they took jewelry that had been collected in the Jundt apartment. On went the bracelets, not of the jewelry variety.

The man gave his name as Jacob Smith and his occupation as a boxer.

"Wouldn't have made a bit of difference to me whether it had been Jess Willard or Battling Siki," said Miss Pundt afterward. "I was determined that he should not get away."

Then Miss Pundt went back to her art work.

Ada Firemen Have Relief From Action

The summer relief from the screeching siren of the fire department is at hand, according to the official word of Somer Jones, fire chief.

The present summer season shows no exception to the general run of things in the past year, when activities in that department have dropped far below par with only two or three alarms to disturb the department during the summer.

Yesterday's alarm spelled a lapse of exactly one month since the equipment was aired by the firemen, which was the longest rest period for the summer.

The longest rest period for the Ada fire department came in 1911 when a period of 102 days elapsed between fire calls. Rest periods have been stretched as long as three months since that time.

The absence of any large degree hazards during the summer months is accredited as the cause for the fire shortage during the summer months.

While the fire department answers few calls during the summer months, it cannot be said that they are not actively engaged during that period. The care for the equipment, care for the park grounds and other chores around the city hall make up a full program for the summer.

Bondsmen Secure Release of Mrs. Ryles From Jail

Mrs. Jennie Ryles, charged with the shooting of her husband at their home July 18, was released from the county jail late yesterday afternoon after having remained in confinement until granted bail through habeas corpus proceedings and her bond set at $5000.

Little time was lost in securing bondsmen and a sufficient bond guaranteed for her release after habeas corpus proceedings were held.

Bond to the extent of $5000 was guaranteed by her bondsmen, George A. Harrison, J. W. Hattox, J. C. Brorrough, and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Dodd, according to entries on the appearance bond record.

Optimism Shied By Smith

Water Commissioner Walter Smith refuses to compliment the fencibles of his department again.

"Every time I give out an interview to the effect that the water department is in perfect running order during the summer months something goes wrong with the entire works," Smith said.

Commissioner Smith's last reference came from the Sunday experience when the service was impaired for several hours. Commissioner Smith was quoted in a Sunday news story to the effect that Ada would probably have no water shortage during the season.

Commissioner Smith states, however, that the works are in good condition and that he can see no reason for a shortage at any time during the summer.

Restless Night is Followed by Second Heat Day

Ada spent a restless night and then looked forward to a sweltering day—and got it. At 3 o'clock today the thermometer frowned again and allowed the mercury to reach its highest peak at 103 degrees.

While the temperature registered lower than the record mark of 106 degrees, the humidity permitted Ada citizens no relief from their sufferings of the night before.

While the government thermometer report only 75 degrees last night the heat proved stifling and an enemy to sleep if the reports of hundreds of tired citizens can be taken as true.

NOTICES BEING SENT TO DELINQUENT RESIDENTS

Notices are being sent to residents of Pontotoc county who have not listed their property on the county roles for the year, according to Nick Heard, assessor.

While the majority of those to whom the notices have been directed have no personal property to be listed, the records remain incomplete until some return is posted on the county books.

Heard could not estimate the amount of taxable property in the county not on the tax roles.

Cities of this country have a total of 60,000 miles of paved streets.

TAG SLEUTH OUT FOR ADA OWNERS

State Officer Declares Motor Owners Must Purchase License for Cars.

Another expense was brought to mind to several Ada motorists yesterday when they were warned by C. A. Rotenberry, state highway enforcement officer, to appear before Justice H. J. Brown to explain the reason of the extended delay in the purchasing of auto licenses for the year.

The action of Judge Brown depends on the attitude and the steps already taken by the warned motorists, several having been fined for their negligence in not purchasing license.

Rotenberry, who has made his official domain in this section of the state, declared that there were quite a few Ada motorists in the delinquent class and subject to arrest.

Rotenberry pointed out that the payment of state licenses was simply an aid to the road building program in the county since ninety per cent of the funds taken from auto license reverts back to the county from which it was assessed.

The enforcement officer warned Ada motorists of the pledge that the state department would allow no one to escape the payment of auto taxes and urged immediate payment in order to avoid trouble.

Rotenberry, who claims Stratford as his home, stated that Ada had bowed to the decree of the state department with a greater degree of readiness than many cities in the state.

STATE WINS FIGHT IN GARRETT MURDER CASE

(By the Associated Press)
CUMBERLAND, C. H., Va., July 26.—The state won the first skirmish today at the trial of the Commonwealth vs. Garrett when Judge White overruled a demurrer of the defense to the motion by the state for a change of venue. The demurrer challenged the right of the state to enter such a motion.

SEEK SUCCESSOR FOR GEORGE WILSON SOON

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, July 26.—A permanent president for the Oklahoma A. & M. college to succeed George Wilson may be named within a few days, it was said here today by John A. Whitehurst, president of the state board of agriculture.

Whitehurst said that he thought the reorganized board would desire to make a permanent selection as soon as possible instead of placing an acting president temporarily in charge.

The board president had been authorized by Gov. J. C. Walton to offer a salary of $10,000, if necessary, to obtain a competent man.

Whitehurst said he would make no fight to regain control of the state market commission which was recently taken from him by former Walton appointees on the board. He said he was satisfied "to see the socialists discharged from the A. & M. college."

MAGNUS JOHNSON SOUNDS WARNING

Declares Nation Now Facing Crisis Second Only to Russia's Plight.

(By the Associated Press)
ST. PAUL, Minn., July 26.—Revolution political, industrial or even resort to arms faces the United States "if conditions confronting the laboring man and farmers are not changed," in the opinion of Magnus Johnson, recently elected senator from Minnesota on the farmer-labor ticket.

"Many think the same thing that happened in Russia cannot happen in this country," the senator-elect said today in a statement to the Associated Press, "but don't fool yourselves. It could happen here before you knew what was going on. The czar had a big army but it could not stop the revolution. We haven't hardly any army at all so what could our government do if there was a nation-wide revolution? It could not do a thing."

"Many things need changing," the new senator said and when asked if he had a definite plan for altering conditions he said he has nothing worked out. "It will have to be worked out by congress," he said.

"The farmer is in dire need," he continued. "Emergency legislation can rectify some of the things that could lead to revolution." The senator said: "Sixty-five per cent of the wealth of the country is in the hands of two per cent of the population," and that "unless there is a better distribution of this wealth the common people are going to revolt against it."

This distribution of wealth, he said, can be accomplished by a heavier tax on large and successful corporations, taxing unproductive incomes "excess profits and profiteers" with a regulation of their activities so that the added tax burden could not be shifted onto the people.

Resort Near New York Grounded in Destructive Fire

(By the Associated Press)
NEW YORK, July 26.—The Whitaker Inn at Seagale, Coney Island, housing about 200 guests, caught fire this afternoon and the flames spread to the roofs of the adjoining houses. Three alarms summoned.

Lashed by a high wind two of the three stories of the frame structure were destroyed and it was feared the entire building would be razed with a loss of $100,000. The police rescued all the 58 persons in the hotel when the fire broke out.

WALTON PLAN TO LEAGUE CONTROL PASSED TO FALL

Governor's Proposed Conference "Council of Twelve" Postponed.

OPPOSITION GLAD

Walton Plans Taking Affairs of League Out of Hands of Leaders.

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, July 26.—Gov. J. C. Walton's plans for creating a "council of twelve" to assume direction of the Oklahoma farmer-labor movement will be delayed "until an opportune time this fall," it was announced today.

The proposed meeting of the farmer and union labor leaders who would compose the council was cancelled. The meeting had been called for August 1. Aldrich Blake, executive counselor to the governor, handed out a statement in the name of the governor who said that cancellation of the call for the conference was for the "sole reason" that the real issue may have become confused in the maze of recent events.

"The rank and file," the statement said, should have opportunity to inform themselves of "recent developments affecting the farmer-labor movement" before any organization for the control of the movement was attempted.

Recent developments have included the governors break with the Farmer-Labor Reconstruction League which elected him last year and the removal of his residence to Muskogee where he is said to be making preparations to launch his candidacy for the United States senate next year.

The calling off of the proposed August 1 conference was regarded by political observers as a temporary victory at least for the chiefs of the Reconstruction League who have been at work undermining the governor's plan for taking control of the farmer-labor movement out of the League's hands and vesting it in the "council of twelve."

Guards to Hold Protection for Spavinaw Crews

TULSA, July 26.—The arrival of a detachment of 10 national guardsmen detailed as special police officers at the Spavinaw dam at 6 o'clock last night prevented residents of Spavinaw region and white workers on the $6,800,000 water project from interfering with 25 Mexican laborers employed in part of the work that the contractor has been unable to get white men to perform.

Despite threats Tuesday night that the Mexicans would be given only 24 hours to leave the Spavinaw district, they were at work at the dam today.

Healdton Team is Rated as Banner State Team Now

Ada fans will see Bill Morgan and Jimmie Woods in action here again Sunday afternoon when the Healdton team rated as one of the strongest in the state, comes here for one game.

Manager A. O. Green extends his official okay for the team to the fans who have not been permitted to see the team in action. Green pronounced the Healdton club one of the cleanest teams in the state.

With Morgan and Wood as batteries for Sunday's game on the Healdton lineup, Green insists that there is little chance for a slow progress of the fete.

Lefty Williams will probably hurt for the local club here Sunday and will be backed up by practically the same lineup as usual.

They Called Him Jim

By JUSTIN WENTWOOD

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

NOBODY called him anything but Jim. Friendly sort of fellow, with a good word for everybody, and a mighty good carpenter. Respected, too, only a little too easy-going.

Had a brother—Arthur. Jim had been born when his folks were poor, struggling farmers; they had made money by the time Arthur arrived. So while Jim went into the carpenter's shop as an apprentice Arthur was put through college. It often happens that way.

Then there was another turn of fortune. Jim's father and mother died within a few weeks of each other, leaving nothing. Jim sweated to keep his younger brother in college.

"Why don't you make him go to work?" he was asked.

"Shucks, Arthur isn't my kind," Jim answered. "He's going to have an education and go into the law."

It was perfectly true Arthur and Jim were as different as day and night. Jim was a big, honest, hard-fisted and soft-headed fellow, rough and ready, a typical working man. Arthur was a dainty, lily-handed boy, with soft fists and a harder head than Jim. Jim was a slave to him. Paid his gambling debts, and mortgaged the shop to do it.

Maisie didn't like that. She was a school teacher, and came of a pretty good family. Jim was a good way beneath her socially, but then he had been in love with her for a long time, and he was a hope and a promise. Besides, she was in the throes of a love disappointment when she consented to marry him—some day.

Some day, when Jim got on his feet again after helping Arthur out of his scrape. Arthur was at the law school now, and wouldn't be able to earn his living for two years more. Maisie promised to wait, but she didn't like the waiting.

She would, in fact, have thrown Jim over if a more satisfactory suitor had come her way. She had tried to intimate to him that, as he couldn't marry her for such a long time, they oughtn't to be engaged at all—just feel free. Jim couldn't take this in. To his mind, once engaged was as good as married. Maisie resigned herself with a sigh.

However, business boomed. Jim got a little money put by; he came to Maisie. "Let's be married in June, dear," he said. "I guess we'll be able to pull along, if we're careful till Arthur gets through his law school."

Maisie agreed. A month before the marriage Arthur came home—came home one night at 11. Jim stared at his white face.

"Jim, old man, I'm in a devil of a hole," he went on to explain. He had forged a check to pay a debt of $500—blackmail, too, so far as Jim could make out. It was known at the school. Law was closed as a career. He wanted money to go West. He wanted the check made good before they put the detectives on him.

Jim went off to the bank, drew out $500, and paid the check. "I guess I can rake up your fare to California," he told his brother, "and let you have a few dollars weekly till you get fixed."

Arthur was in a bad state mentally. He had to go to bed. Jim tended him all the day, tried to mend his wound and self-respect.

"I'll have to tell Maisie, you know," he said, "but of course I won't tell her about the check. Just that it was a debt, you know, Arthur."

Maisie listened in anger so intense that she could find no reproaches. "Oh, yes," she said with a bitter laugh. "That means postponing the marriage again, doesn't it?"

"Only till fall, dear, if business keeps good. And I couldn't go back on Arthur."

"No," said Maisie slowly. "I wish you'd introduce me to this paragon, Jim."

"That's nice of you, dear. I want you to like him for my sake," said Jim.

Maisie and Arthur rather took to each other. They were together a good while when Jim was in the shop. About two weeks after his arrival Arthur was ready to start West. Jim paid his fare and gave him $200.

They shook hands at the station. "You're a good sort," said Arthur.

Jim found a note when he got home: "Since you subordinate me and everything to Arthur, I have left for California with him. We shall get married there. Maisie."

That's Jim—just Jim to everybody. Honest and hard-working, but he has to work hard to support those two fatherless children and their mother in San Francisco. Arthur disappeared with another woman last year. Jim talks of getting them East, where he can look after them better.

Old Arts Are Spinning and Weaving.

So far back into the history of civilization does the development of the art of spinning and weaving go that the date of its origin is unknown. Shawls, fabrics of great beauty, were worn in India at the time when Alexander the Great made his expedition to that country. The Greeks learned the manufacture of woolen goods from the Egyptians, the Romans learned it from the Greeks, and so it passed along. Although the loom used by those ancient peoples was of the most primitive description so well did they know how to manipulate it that the beauty and fineness of their work has not been excelled to this day.

A collection of 5,000 American stamps valued at $125,000, was recently exhibited in London. It belonged to the United States.

EDUCATE WOMEN WORLD PLEA NOW

Claim Education of Woman Lends Effect on Entire Family.

(By the Associated Press)

STOCKHOLM, July 26.—If the Baptist women of the world seize their present opportunity they will adopt as their slogan "Educate the women of all lands," Mrs. Helen Barrett Montgomery of Rochester, N. Y., and former president of the Northern Baptist Convention, told the Baptist World Alliance today during its special program given over to the consideration of women's work.

"When you educate a man you liberate an individual, but when you educate a woman you liberate a family," Mrs. Montgomery declared, and she said Baptist women of the world were performing no more significant service for womankind today than through their Home and Foreign Mission Societies in establishing schools for the education of women to whom doors of opportunity have been closed heretofore. Seven schools of higher learning in the Orient are supported by the Women's Board of Foreign Missions, the speaker pointed out, while the women of various denominations and countries are co-operating in the support of 18 schools in the Orient which have for their sole purpose the provision of a trained Christian leadership for the women of that section of the world. A fund of $3,000,000 for these schools was recently completed in the United States under the leadership of Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Boston.

Christ was the great emancipator of women, Mrs. Montgomery declared, and in the proportion that the women of the world are educated and trained for service will the kingdom of Christ be ushered in. With the larger education of women there have come larger opportunities in organization and service. It was set forth, and recent reforms in temperance and other welfare times indicate the effectiveness of woman's power, once she is liberated and trained, it was declared.

SEPARATE GOVERNMENT FOR EAST CHURCHES

(By the Associated Press)

STOCKHOLM, July 26.—Sordid is the argument that since the churches in Europe and America give money they should determine the policies of churches on the foreign field, Dr. James H. Franklin, foreign secretary of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society, told the Baptist World Alliance today. "They may determine their own policies or recall their missionaries, but no board in the west is wise enough to dictate to the churches of the East," he said.

Men with a message are needed as missionaries, Dr. Franklin asserted. They must be the best products of our western life, he said, as this is "no hour for small souls in the mission field."

Dr. Franklin paid tribute to the pioneers in the mission field. Today we count them among our heroes, he said, but sometimes they were heretics in the eyes of many of their own generation.

Our greatest need today is not money nor more missionaries, the speaker stated, but "the sacrificial spirit is the need of the hour and we of the West cannot impart it to others except as we may have acquired it for ourselves. Facing the future our greatest need is for more of the spirit of the Cross of Calvary."

"At such an hour as this," Dr. Franklin continued, "the Baptists of the world enjoy an extraordinary opportunity for service," and in conclusion he stated: "The denomination which can prove most surely its purpose to serve disinterestedly is the one of which, in time, it will be inquired: 'In whose name and by what power have ye done these things?'"

MASONIC EMBLEM HAS TRAVEL OVER COUNTRY

(By the Associated Press)

MARION, O.—As the crusaders of old, members of Marion Commandery No. 36, Knights Templar, will undertake a pilgrimage. They will leave here July 23 and their travel will end in Hollywood, California, August 3, when Sir Knight Warren G. Harding, a member of the commandery, will present to Hollywood Commandery No. 56 an emblem which has crossed the continent.

This is the Traveling Beausant, dedicated by the Grand Priory of Canada, which is to be taken around the world by means of one commandery delivering it to another. It is to go to only one branch of the high Masonic Order in a grand jurisdiction. The commandery which holds the Beausant selects the one which gets it next.

Cyrene Preceptory No. 29, K. T. of Toronto, was the first recipient of the emblem. Then it was delivered to Hugh De Paynes Commandery stationed at Buffalo, then to St. John's Commandery No. 4, K. T., at Philadelphia, which delivered it to Columbia Commandery No. 2, K. T., of Washington, D. C., whence it was sent to Marion.

It has been estimated that fifty years will be consumed in sending the Beausant around the world.

The Marion representatives will display the Beausant before commanderies in Chicago, Omaha, Colorado Springs and Salt Lake City, where stops will be made.

Ceremonies at Hollywood will be held in the Hollywood Bowl, which accommodates 50,000 persons.

BERLIN, July 1.—Forty-two hundred Russian refugees, scattered all over the face of the earth, are taking courses in the correspondence school which the American Young Men's Christian Association is conducting in Berlin.

A hotel porter in Cairo is studying bookkeeping. Three Russians who have sought refuge in Tunis are studying farm organization. Eight refugees in Turkey are taking courses in stenography. A former Russian officer who found work in France oiling steam engines is taking a course in steam engineering. Down in the heart of China one Russian is taking a course in road building. Six Russians in Cyprus are studying radio telegraphy. A Russian in Brazil is taking machine drawing.

Bulgaria has a larger number of correspondence students than any other country, $64 in all. Most of these are studying mathematics, but there are also many there who are taking courses in farm organization and bookkeeping, and 127 Russians in that country are taking electro-technics.

Eight Russians in the United States are taking courses from the Berlin school, most of them mathematical courses. But Bulgaria, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Germany, the countries where the greatest number of Russian refugees are, lead all others in their enrollment. Poland is second with 810 mail students.

The new Baltic states, Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia, are also well represented in the list, having from 150 to 400 students each. Algeria, Morocco, Syria and Palestine also are represented.

Bavaria Seeks Water Power.

(By the Associated Press)

MUNICH.—Bavaria will have one of the world's greatest power plants when the canalization of the Middle Isar River is completed.

Seven thousand workmen are engaged in constructing a new bed for the river which will make it possible to develop an electric current aggregating 400,000,000 watt hours yearly. This will result in a saving of 500,000 tons of coal annually, the cost of which has been estimated at 400,000,000 paper marks.

"BULL" DURHAM

Read this

You will be amazed to see how the use of "Bull" Durham tobacco will cut down the cost of your smoking. Remember, "Bull" gives you 50 cigarettes of the best flavor and quality for 10 cents.

This means easily a saving for the average smoker of from $1 to $1.50 a week—$52 to $79 a year.

Seventy-nine dollars will buy lots of things. A radio set, a talking machine, a very fine suit of clothes, a set of tires, the first fifteen payments on a Ford, a good-sized insurance policy.

Hard to roll your own? Not really. Give yourself a chance to learn, this way:

Carry a sack of "Bull" in your pocket all the time, as well as your regular cigarettes. Every time you think of smoking a cigarette pull out your sack of "Bull" and try rolling one.

By the time you've used the sack you ought to be a fair producer. And you'll certainly be a convert to the mild, delightful flavor of "Bull" Durham tobacco.

With each package you receive a book of 24 leaves of BULL—the finest cigarette paper in the world.

Sulphur Girl Confident Of Winning Race

Miss Vera C. James, Murray county's candidate for honors in the American Legion Popularity Contest now in its final stage, came near being a Kansan by birth, but claims that Oklahoma is her native state, her birthplace being practically on the state line.

Miss James has lived in Caney, Kansas, and Sulphur, Oklahoma, the latter place being her home at present. She was a member of the graduating class of Sulphur high school in 1922.

Eight months of last year were spent by Miss James at Big Canyon, near Sulphur, teaching and she expects to teach there again the coming school year. She has spent the last two summers at East Central.

Like two other contestants in the race that has for its goal San Francisco and the American Legion convention Miss James has in her veins the blood of native Americans, being one-sixteenth Choctaw.

Her father is Black James of Sulphur, and one of her grandfathers was Tandy Walker, who was prominent in earlier times in the state. Miss James comes from a line of Choctaw chiefs.

Her plans for the future include, in addition to a journey in the near future to the west coast, teaching and attending school for some years to come. She expresses herself as confident that she will win the contest, which ends Saturday night.

RECONSTRUCTED RIVER ADDS NO STREAM BED

DETROIT, July 26.—The river Rouge, site of the great blast furnaces of the Ford Motor Company, has been initiated to deep draft vessels. For years a lazy twisting stream, the river has been developed as an artery of the Detroit river at the behest of the Ford interests.

To permit the great ore carriers of the lakes to bring their cargoes direct to the blast furnaces, the river has been reconstructed. Instead of the twisting stream of former years a new River Rouge has been created. From the mouth of the Detroit River to the Ford turning basin the stream is three miles long, almost two miles shorter than the old course. Its width at the mouth is 400 feet, and the average width along the dock lines is 300 feet, with a bottom width of 200 feet. The depth at low water is 21 feet.

A new canal, 3,000 feet long, was cut through the entire subdivision of property, avoiding an "S" turn where the river joins the basin.

Some 15 industries in addition to the Ford blast furnaces are operating along the banks of the Rouge, and with the improvement just completed six miles of docking facilities have been added to Detroit's waterfront. Heretofore the industries located at the Rouge have attracted an annual cargo tonnage of 2,000,000. The Ford plant alone expects to bring in 2,000,000 tons during 1923.

The total cost of the new Rouge, including bridges, dredging, and right of way is estimated at $10,000,000.

Boy Scout News

Mayor W. H. Fisher has asked the scout executive to get 16 scouts who have uniforms to act as traffic policemen on Saturday during the Farmers Labor Picnic. He wants boys who will attend strictly to business and who will act politely and do the work in a satisfactory way as they did during Boy's Week. All boys who will act as such report to Mr. Harry Deering at the Ada Market and Grocery.

The following is an account of the cost of the camping trip yesterday when the scout executive took a group of younger boys to Rock Crossing. They were taken to this place instead of Byrds Mill because there were not a sufficient number to pay the transportation.

Received from the boys for trip

Paid out for Transportation	$3.00
Paid out for pop	.75
Paid out for Ice Cream	2.50
Paid out for Ice	.15

This 10 cents deposited in scout treasury.

All boys who want to go on any of the future camping trips should go to work and save their money. Come and see Mr. Miller and he will do his best to get you an opportunity to get work so that you can pay your way. We wish to take this opportunity to thank Mr. J. C. Collins for his reasonable charges for transportation.

COLLEGE NOTES

By Roy McKeown

ACTIVE CLASS WORK AT COLLEGE BROUGHT TO END.

Today marked the end of active class work at the college and tomorrow will see the scattering to various parts of the district and state the nineteen hundred students who for nine weeks have attended the teachers college here.

The session has been by far the most successful in the history of East Central. The largest enrollment of any summer term was accommodated with difficulty, two ward schoolbuildings being required to take care of a number of classes.

The work of the summer was well planned before hand and there was little difficulty in making readjustments to the unexpected numbers who entered school.

A high class of entertainments was brought here by the administration, including the chautauqua with a number of well known artists.

President Linscheld has expressed himself as well satisfied with the quality of work done during the past nine weeks. The large force of special instructors have well taken care of the unusual number of students.

The formal end of the term comes at twelve o'clock tomorrow after the commencement exercises at nine and the conferring of degrees and credit slips.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THY WILL, NOT MINE:—Teach me to do thy will; for thou art my God; thy spirit is good; lead me into the land of uprightness.—Psalm 143:10.

THE SOLID SOUTH.

Figures recently issued by the Census Bureau reveal that the South leads the country in birth rate. Six Southern states are placed at the top of the list covering the first nine months of 1922, the highest of them, North Carolina, having a birth rate of 30 per 1,000 population, and the lowest of the six, Kentucky, a rate of 23.3 per 1,000, the latter being considerably above the average for all the states listed, which is 28.8 births per 1,000.

We may judge from this that "race suicide," popularly conceived by alarmists as an instrument for the wiping out of native American stock and the continued multiplication of the foreign stock, does not always run to the same universal type. The South, the stronghold of native stock, upsets the theory. North Carolina, which leads the Nation in the smallness of its foreign population, having only seven-tenths of one per cent, likewise leads the country with the highest birth rate.

Quoting these same figures, the Manufacturers' Record of Baltimore, adds that previous census lists have shown that these states of the South have a lower death rate than for the rest of the country, and a very much lower rate than for many of the supposedly healthful states of the union. The South, therefore, is an excellent place for building a home and for long enjoyment of the same.—Star-Telegram.

IT'S DANGEROUS.

There are entirely too many negroes living in the white sections of Ada. The conditions, existing in some parts of the city, if continued are liable to lead to serious results.

Residents get careless about these matters. They have servant houses and want to keep help. It is oftentimes easier to get help by furnishing a house than otherwise. There are others who rent servant houses to negroes simply to get the money for the property.

There is no particular objection to a servant occupying a house on the alley, unless such servant keeps a bunch of negroes around. But when a servant's house is occupied by a family of negroes and this family insists upon having company and a continual crowd about, it is just cause for complaint. There is a part of the city set apart for the colored people, and they will be happier and all conditions will be better if they will on the whole live there. For them to live in crowds in white sections is dangerous for both races and might be the spark to set off racial trouble.

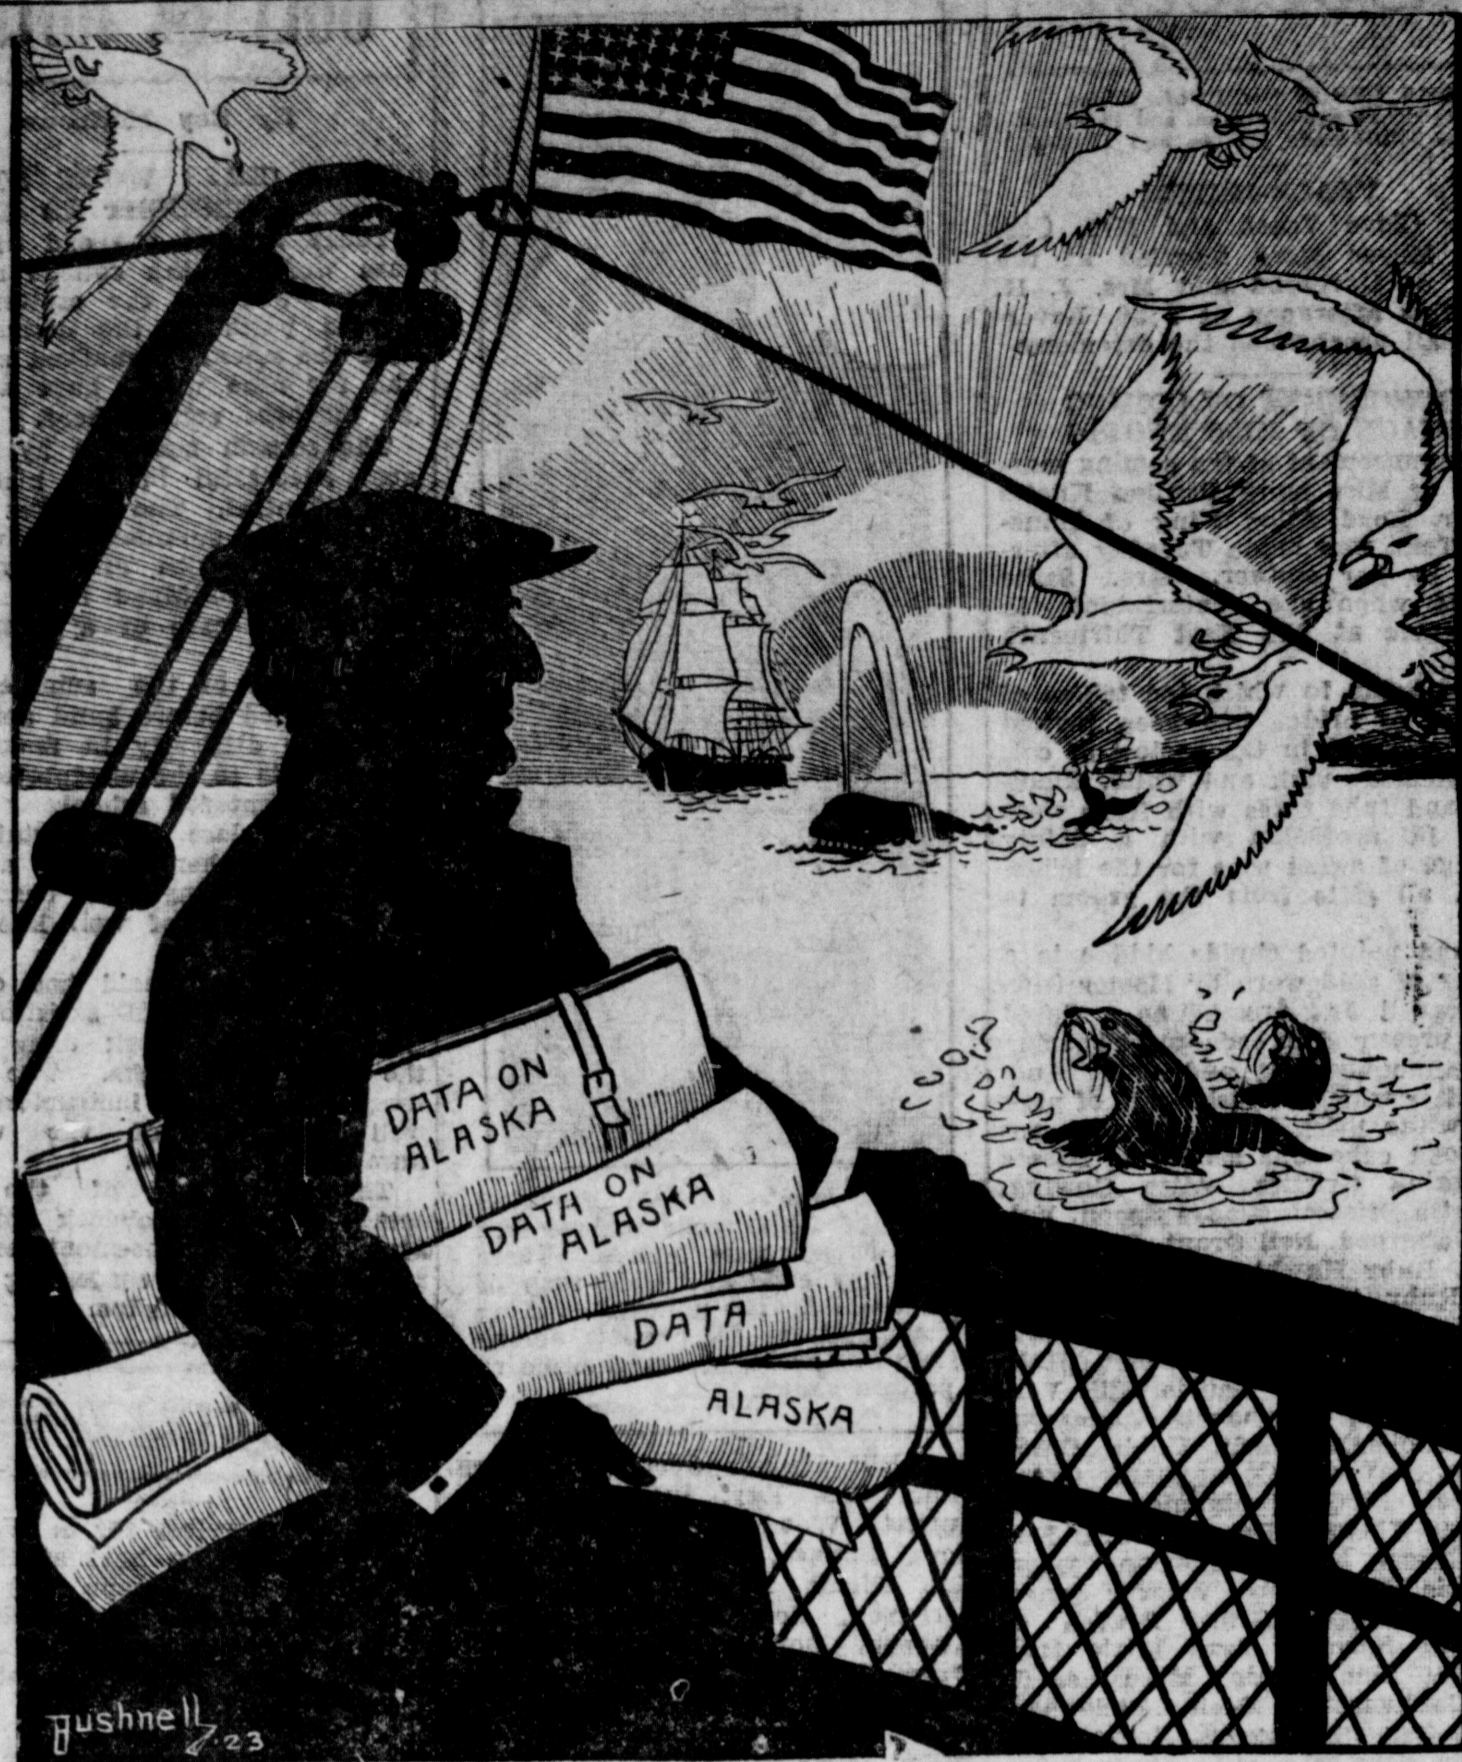

Senator Johnson of Minnesota is in about the same mind as are all who have given thought to the deplorable state of the agricultural industry. He says something must be done at once but admits he has no definite plan of action. He says congress must work out something. That is what others have said and while congress under the leadership of the farm bloc is willing enough to do something the most sincere friend of the farmers has not been able to devise anything of value. Capper and others of the farm bloc thought that a drastic law covering gambling in grain futures would help but market prices have continued to fall. It will take a real Moses to solve the problem upon which depends the prosperity of the nation, but thus far no one has given any evidence of being qualified for the role of Moses.

The American girl has always had her critics. They have predicted a very dark future for her unless she mended her ways, but she is still the same old girl on the average and the direful forebodings have always come to naught. The American girl may appear frivolous and light headed at times, but she still goes her adorable way admired as much as her mother and grandmother were in their day. No, we don't take much stock in talk about the girl of today degenerating. She has her faults, of course, and could be more thoughtful of her elders, perhaps, but at heart she is not bad and with increasing years will become like the average girl of other generations.

The Oklahoma Leader, formerly Governor Walton's staunchest supporter, now brands him as a weakling, traitor, companion of crooks and several other things. It gives what purports to be some inside dope on the financing of the last Democratic campaign and the purchase of his Oklahoma City home by the governor. If the Leader knew all these things it is strange that it kept everything dark as long as the governor went according to its ideas. The attitude of the Leader is that a crook is all right as long as he is on its side but a very dangerous citizen when he turns his crookedness against its pet notions.

It is suggest that C. C. Childers, state auditor, should be enjoying himself, for if he refuses to issue a warrant some one sues him, and if he issues one some one else is ready to enjoin him, so there you are.

ON THE ALASKAN TRAIL WITH HARDING—No. 14 HOMWARD BOUND!

SEEKS IMPROVED MAKING OF IRON

Manufacture of Iron Now
Experimental Purpose
With United States.

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, July 26.—The United States government is now making iron, but only as an experiment and not for the commercial field. Its blast furnace is located at Minneapolis and is operated as a laboratory by the bureau of mines in co-operation with the University of Minnesota. After four years of experimentation to develop it, the furnace recently produced several tons of gray iron and spiegel-iron. This type of experiment is declared unique in the field of industrial research, as blast furnaces are not included usually in laboratory equipment. But with the demonstration showing every phase of the operation of iron making under complete technical control, it is believed the investigators at the Minneapolis station are in a position to undertake the study of various problems, the solution of which should be of great practical value to blast furnace operators.

The furnace was operated first as a slagging-type gas producer until it had reached a steady state, then, molten and chemically, iron ore without the addition of a flux then was introduced, and its descent in the furnace was followed by means of gas samples taken at various stations. When the effect of this charge had been dissipated, more ore was charged without limestone, and other sets of samples were taken.

The purpose is to obtain a comparison of the gas composition at various planes of the furnace. Various sizes of ore also were used. The reduction of the ore at the stockline was found to be greater with smaller sized ore, as indicated by higher carbon dioxide.

One of the most important problems that will be worked out with the experimental furnace will be that of finding a means of extracting iron from the low-grade ores found especially in northern Minnesota.

Praise Bulgarian Schools.
(By the Associated Press)

SOFIA, Bulgaria.—American educators, studying the schools of Bulgaria, have found that they show marked progress in combining practical with theoretical education, and King Boris was gratified at this comment when the investigators called upon him recently in this city.

Professor Paul Monroe, director of the International Institute, Teachers College, New York, and Dr. William F. Russell, associate director, were the king's visitors, and they were impressed by Boris' democratic demeanor and intelligent interest in matters educational.

LAWTON.—Comanche county commissioners have laid before officials of Grady county plans for the proposed new highway between Lawton and Chickasha. The road would run by way of Fletcher, through Farwell, and would save more than 12 miles on the trip. The commissioners say they hope the road can be extended to Oklahoma City by way of Tuttle and Middleton.

The Forum of the Press

Province of a Newspaper.

(Red Wing (Minnesota) Eagle)
It would be comical, were it not somewhat pathetic, the way newspaper offices are besieged every day by their friends, urging them to "roast" this and that; to "see to it" that this and that is corrected; to have this and that done in the city or county; to start this and that kind of movement to correct evil in the state government. These friends actually appear to believe that it is the newspaper's business to handle all these affairs.

But a self-respecting newspaper, though ready and willing to carry all reasonable responsibility, must remind its readers that they—the people—are the authority upon whom rests the responsibility for the present state of affairs local, state and national.

A self-respecting newspaper tries to report the news of what actually happens, not what it might wish had happened. The relation to the general public is not always understood. It is the duty of a newspaper to be in a position to support any good act and criticize any bad act of public policy.

This relationship cannot exist where favors are asked and granted. Honesty is the only policy for a newspaper.

If objectors don't like the way things are going, they should qualify as voters, and then raise Cain about it.

WAR DEVICE USED TO RESCUE BURIED MINERS

NEW YORK.—An instrument called the geophone, invented by the French to detect underground noises during the World War, is now being used to rescue entombed miners, locate mine fire areas and reduce accidents through blasting, the Engineering Foundation announces.

The geophone has been improved by the U. S. Army Engineers and Bureau of Standards until its sensitivity is so great that in recent tests sledge pounding was heard 3,000 feet through rock, 2,000 feet through coal, 500 feet through mine cover and 300 feet through clay.

CHICAGO MAKES OPERATIC START

Large Contributors Insure Success of new Venture
in Opera Field

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO, July 26.—Chicago has gone into the Grand Opera business, and after a year's operation, the financial statement shows that the city is making a success of it.

Backed by a regiment of guarantors, who are to be found in all walks of business, commercial, industrial and social life, as well as by the general public, the Chicago Civic Opera Company has become almost as truly civic as a public library or a public park. The admission charged for performances, which is moderate and considered popular, though insufficient as yet to pay the full cost of entertainment, is the sole mark distinguishing the Chicago Civic Opera from other civic institutions with a general appeal.

There are 2,200 guarantors who stepped to the front when Harold F. McCormick and Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick contributed their holdings to the then Civic Opera Association.

It is now announced by Samuel Insull, President of the Opera company, that when the deficit for the first civic opera season, that of 1922-1923, was finally determined and made known, the guarantors responded immediately and unhesitatingly and fulfilled their pledges without demur.

Mr. Insull says "Grand Opera in Chicago thus has passed into a stage of Civic Grand Opera, supported by as representative people as would be met by the tax collector gathering sinews for city government. The method of obtaining support closely approximates the municipal state subsidies provided operas abroad, the sole difference being that in Chicago a preferred list of taxpayers of all professions underwrite opera, while abroad, in many instances, financial losses are liquidated by general taxation."

Attempts are to be made this summer to recover $25,000,000 in bullion which was lost in the Lusitania, torpedoed by the Germans in 1915.

THERE is a difference in tires. Only the new Goodyear Cord Tire is made of highest-grade, long-staple, high-tensile cotton, built up by the Goodyear patented group-ply method, and equipped with heavier sidewalls and the beveled All-Weather Tread. The difference shows in the Goodyear's longer wear and lower cost per mile.

At Goodyear Service Station Dealers, we sell and recommend the new Goodyear Cord with the beveled All-Weather Tread and back them up with standard Goodyear Service.

Service..

Service is the essence of all human relations. Your electric light and power company believes that it renders real public service.

Where else will you find service available on the split—second—morning, noon, evening, midnight—twenty-four hours in the day, every day, in the year, Sundays and holidays included. Electricity is energy. Like time it passes without pause. It cannot be manufactured and stored in batteries, except in limited amount. All the batteries in the world would not care for one hour's demand upon the electric light and power companies in this country.

Electricity must be manufactured, as required whether one or thousands turn on light and power. That necessitates constant watchfulness on the part of men and women who are responsible for your electric service. Theirs is a constant duty, unceasing attendance upon the generating machines and the miles of wire.

ALUMNI FOR TRAINING CAMPS TO BE FOUNDED

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO, July 26.—The ground work for an Alumni Society that bids fair to be the largest in the United States in the course of time is being laid by those who are organizing and preparing to conduct the Citizens Military Training camps in the various states this year.

The announcement of the Alumni Society's organization says: "The men who attended the first voluntary camps in 1913, 1914, 1915 and 1916 joined in forming the Military Training Camps Association of the United States, and this is the real Alumni society of all who believe in the 'Plattsburg Idea' of General Leonard Wood, and who have been trained in the citizens' camps."

"This year the men in each camp are invited to group themselves as a part of the Nation-wide organization, to be known as the Citizens' Military Training Camps Alumni."

"In order to make this effective the candidates from each county will select their own captain. These in turn, will select their own state captain and these state captains will, in turn, select a corps area captain."

Charters will be issued to each county company, but the real organization of the Alumni body will take place at the camps during this summer.

John Solomon, Incognito

By H. Bedford-Jones

Copyright by H. Bedford-Jones

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Aline Laverne owns Cypressport, a small plantation in the Louisiana bayous. She leaves the management to John Philbrick, an old retainer and faithful, but not a good business man. As Ah Lee, the Manchu, who is trying to help Aline, explains to the mysterious John Solomon, Aline's uncle David Macarty and his son, Felix, under pretense of looking after her interests, plot to get control of the plantation.

CHAPTER II.—One of their schemes is to dam the bayou and thus dry up the rice fields. Then they try to get rid of Philbrick. Aline suspects the Macartys and consults Jack Fortier, a young lawyer, who takes her case.

CHAPTER III.—He finds a big light on his hands, for the Macartys are all powerful. They try to bribe him off.

CHAPTER IV.—Then they have him beaten up, but he is rescued by John Solomon.

CHAPTER V.—The Macartys drop open hostilities and invite Fortier and Aline to go on their yacht, the Water-sprite, to inspect the plantation. Solomon has secured the job of steward on the yacht. Just before they sail Aline gets a telegram from Philbrick saying that he is going away for a while and has left the plantation in charge of Captain Wrexham.

CHAPTER VI.—Solomon foils an attempt to steal Fortier's papers. An outlaw named Gros Michel is killed on the yacht and Thompson, the mate, is held for ransom. Through the evidence of Solomon, who later confesses to Fortier that he killed the man, and gives Fortier the Laverne papers, which Thompson had stolen from the lawyer.

The launch popped suddenly into a large and open stream, Bayou Latouche. Here were other boats, horses, men; from somewhere the whistle of a locomotive, bringing first wonder to the eyes of Wrexham, then a laugh. A bend in the stream and Latouche appeared, rapidly growing in size. Ten minutes, and Wrexham tossed his boy a dollar, then strode up town to lunch and attend to business.

After luncheon, Wrexham went to the railroad station and dispatched Philbrick's telegram to Fortier. This accomplished, he sought the post office and went to the general-delivery window.

"I ordered mail forwarded and held here, from San Francisco," he said. "Cap'n Tom Wrexham, schooner Nautilus."

After a slight delay, he was handed a letter, much marked about and forwarded, and a curious glance followed him as he turned away.

When he was out in the street, Wrexham examined the letter curiously. It was from a man in Zamboanga in the Philippines, a former partner of Wrexham in many deals, a man whom Wrexham trusted.

The skipper tore at the envelope. Into his fingers came a letter, and with it a newspaper clipping. His eyes widened on this clipping. His sturdy fingers clutched it fiercely, his figure stiffened as he read the words. Astonishment flooded into his face, followed by a flush that might have come from some inward relief or deep pleasure.

"If this ain't a rum go!" he ejaculated with an oath. He lowered the paper and stared blankly before him. "A rum go and no mistake! the only time in my life I was guilty of having a conscience—and now to find it's all been wasted!"

He read the clipping again, incredulous. No, there was no error! The two men and a woman, the three whom he had betrayed, had come to no ill end after all. His remorse had been needless. There was nothing for which to blame himself; his action had resulted in no harm at all. The clipping told him all this.

The wonder of it oppressed Wrexham. The ironic humor of it struck him and evoked a laugh. On the heels of this feeling, a thought; Why had he learned this fact only today? Because, obviously, he had accepted the duty imposed upon him by John Philbrick and the girl's photograph. Because he had sincerely wished to make amends for his former actions.

In a moment, this conviction became deeply and ineradicably imprinted upon Wrexham's mind. It was a vague notion, but it fitted well with his vaguely formulated ideas of an overruling providence and an offended Jehovah. Wrexham was in no sense religious, but he did have beliefs. His canons were Masonic rather than theological. It was to him, indubitable that this information had come to him as a reward for what he had undertaken here.

"A rum go and no mistake!" he repeated again, slowly, a trifle awed.

He remembered the letter, and glanced over the writing. It made no reference to the newspaper clipping. It was concerned only with business. There was, however, a postscript:

"P. S. I hear that the chink of Macassar, Chuen Ying, pulled up stakes two or three years ago, and vanished."

"They say he went to the States, and I hear he was no chink at all, but a blooded Manchu. If you meet him over there, give him my regards—and look out!"

Chuen Ying! For a moment Wrexham puzzled, before he remembered that burned and looted junk under Palembang island. Then he laughed.

"If this ain't my lucky day!" he reflected. "I'm comin' out all right, I tell you. Now, I'd better buy some stuff and get back home. No time to waste floatin' the schooner and irrigatin' that cursed rice crop. Warn me to irrigate, will you? I'll do it, blast your eyes!"

A furious exultation was upon him for the rest of that day. He could scarcely sit quiet while the launch chugged back home through the bayous.

Immediately he reached the plantation, Wrexham went aboard the schooner, claved up the steeply inclined deck, and vanished below. He was busied there, alone, until sunset. Then he emerged into sight, yawned and stretched himself, and hailed the bank. A negro in a canoe fetched him ashore.

"Leave this canoe with a paddle in it," said Wrexham. "I want to use it tonight, but I'll do my own paddling."

"Yas, suh, cap'n," came the answer.

Wrexham dined alone that evening. He enjoyed being master of this place, and it was very certain that every one in the place enjoyed having him for master.

Darkness had fallen when Wrexham called Uncle Neb to the library, and stated that he was going out. He demanded a dark coat, which Uncle Neb produced. With this, he left the house and started for the bayou.

Two hours later he returned. He was met by Uncle Neb, who was excited and nervous.

"Cap'n, boss, dere's been a gent'l-man here two times axin' fo' you-all," said the old dandy. "O! Mistuh Philbrick, suh, done said he want to come around heah no mo', but I reckon—"

"Eh?" said Wrexham, coming into the hall from the gallery. "Some one here, you say?"

"Dat yaller man, suh—Mistuh Ah Lee! He's settin' in by de fah right now. Oh, my lawd, cap'n, boss! Why, suh, dem elegant white pants is all wet and—"

Wrexham, in fact, was soaking wet to the waist, and stained with mud. He glanced down at himself, and laughed.

"Ah Lee—that's the man, eh?"

"Dat's him, suh. I done tol' him to set an' wait—"

"Quite right, Uncle Neb. I'll change my clothes and be right down."

Wrexham went upstairs to the room which he occupied. He got out fresh clothes, and laughed softly to himself as he changed. Once he glanced at his watch, as though expecting something. Then he shook his head.

"Not yet—a good fifteen minutes yet!" he murmured. "I wonder if Macarty sent this chink to see me? Wants me to run some liquor, or maybe some hop, for him. That'd be a cute trap to catch Tom Wrexham in, wouldn't it? H'm! After the news I got today, the whole bunch can roast in h—!"

He broke into a cheery, albeit tuneless, whistle—a most singular thing for Wrexham. Yet, why not? This day he had received great news. He was a happy man. The load that had weighed his mind was gone. He went down to the library feeling that twenty years had slipped from him. He felt quite prepared for any game.

In this mood, he stepped into the library. He came face to face with the man who rose to meet him. Wrexham stopped dead still.

In the candlelight, his face went absolutely livid. His hand slipped to his pocket, and found that he had left his pistol upstairs. He drew a breath and stood waiting, expectant, as though he were facing death.

"Good evening," said the yellow man quietly. "You did not expect to see me, captain?"

"I—I expected Ah Lee," murmured Wrexham. His voice was hollow and dead.

"I am Ah Lee," said the other. The wrinkled yellow face smiled. "Alse I am—or was—Chuen Ying of Macassar. I have hoped to see you for several years. Shall we sit down?"

CHAPTER X

Captain Wrexham sat down. Except for the passing pallor of his face he appeared quite calm.

He was calm enough, goodness knows! Calm, with the deadly certainty that he was trapped. He had not a weapon within reach. He expected not the least mercy. He was too well aware how such men as Ah Lee cherish ancient enmities and relish long-deferred vengeance.

The Manchu was smiling—another bad smile. Despite his years, his frame was tall and burly; his black jacket and trousers were of fine silk, his hands hidden in the sleeves. His bare feet showed through the straps of sandals.

And this man was Chuen Ying! The schooner had been lying here for a week or more, so this yellow man must have known all about her long since. Captain Wrexham felt a trace of cold perspiration. How often in those days had he been stepping close to death. For once all his sang-froid was stricken, his garrulous tongue quenched.

He reached for a cigar, lighted it, and fastened his protruding eyes upon the Manchu.

"Well?" he asked quietly.

"You know, of course, that I have reasons for wanting to see you," said Ah Lee in a conversational tone. "I have had these reasons for a long time."

Wrexham nodded. "I always pay debts myself," he said.

"Of course." The other smiled gently.

"I have tried several times to reach you, but failed. Why did you burn my junk, back there at Palembang?"

Wrexham crossed his legs, puffed reflectively, and stared at the fire.

"Well," he answered, "that goes back to trouble I had with her skipper, when we were laying side by side at Timor Laut; and the whole thing started that way. Just how it was, I don't remember. One thing led to another. Finally he drowned one of my Kanakas at Palembang, and after that I left the harbor and laid for him."

"I see," responded the Manchu. "All this was very unfortunate. It cost me a ship and a rich cargo—a very rich cargo."

This was true enough. Some of the loot was still aboard the Nautilus, in chests.

Captain Tom Wrexham had been in some tight places in the course of his life, but in none which pinched so tightly as this one. Being conversant with the world, he knew that he was standing cheek by jowl with death; the only question was just what form that death would take.

"I had a long talk with Mr. Philbrick today," said the Manchu's level voice.

Wrexham's head jerked. Something in the tone of those words sharpened his glance.

"Ah! Then you know what's going on here?"

Ah Lee smiled. It was a smile of genuine amusement; a smile that ended in a richly musical laugh.

"Yes, Poor Philbrick! He learned something this day. When I left him he was like a man dumfounded."

"Oh, ho!" said Wrexham. "You mean, you told him things about me, eh?"

Ah Lee gave him a glance of astonishment.

"Of course not. About myself! You see, he has always considered me something as you or I would regard a lazy, worthless coolie. He knew or guessed that I was engaged in the traffic of liquor, and he had threatened to shoot me. What he never knew until today was that Miss Laverne is a very dear friend of mine."

It was Wrexham's turn to be startled. He stiffened in his chair. But Ah Lee continued meditatively.

"We are friends, yes, but not openly. I am not, you understand, a very good person to be considered as the friend of a young girl—in this country. Often we have met and talked. Small favors have passed. During a year and more, we have progressed in our own form of friendship. You should really know her, captain. Asia is supposed to produce wonderful women, yet I have never encountered any with the peculiar charm of Miss Laverne."

The protruding eyes of Wrexham were filled with a questioning and perplexed light.

This Oriental was speaking in a hushed and reverent voice, as one speaks of some high and sacred thing. Wrexham gradually comprehended that he was being furnished with certain vital information—that the Manchu had a deliberate purpose in what he was saying.

Ah Lee looked up and smiled, but now the smile was thin and dry, very sardonic.

"I will concede," he said, his words smoothly acrid, "that you are a very evil man. You, undoubtedly, will concede that I am also a very evil person, a menace to the community. Yet, from my talk with Philbrick, I learned something about you."

"For example, that you were impelled to take this plantation in charge, because of a singular influence exerted upon you by Miss Laverne's photograph. In other words, some residuum of basic good in your soul was awakened into life."

"H'm!" grunted Wrexham, with a wry grimace. He was uneasy and disturbed.

At this instant there penetrated to them a muffled disturbance of the atmosphere—a dull, thudding vibration that was felt, rather than heard. Almost at once, it was followed by a second reverberating shock.

Ah Lee started, lifting eyes that were a sudden blaze of light. His hands moved slightly in his wide sleeves. But Wrexham waved his cigar and chuckled calmly.

"Don't worry," he said. "That was my irrigation machinery at work. Perhaps you don't know all the ins and outs of this place—"

"I know," said the Manchu. "But this—"

"Well," put in the seaman, "young Macarty was here last night and served notice on me, vice John Philbrick, to irrigate the rice fields. The water went down this morning. Tonight I am irrigating—that's all!"

Admiration gleamed in the oblique Oriental eyes.

"So that was why you were out in a canoe this evening, when I arrived?"

"Oh! You knew that, did you?"

"Of course. You have been watched. And you were—"

"Using up some old dynamite I had aboard the schooner. A time fuse and a float. Now, let's get back to first causes. You say that you and Miss Laverne are friends? But young Macarty intimated that you and he were friends likewise?"

"We have had dealings," returned the Manchu imperturbably. "He does not know that Miss Laverne is my friend, however. Now, I should like to ask you a few questions."

Ah Lee regarded him for a moment the black eyes were chill and terrible. "Until this morning, I fully intended to kill you, captain. Especially, since I have not long to live, and the disease grows on me. But now I have laid aside such thoughts."

"Reason bein' what?" inquired the seaman cheerfully, yet suspiciously.

"That friendship, in the scale of ethics, comes above revenge. Miss Laverne is in deep trouble; she must have friends to aid her. The gods have sent you to that end."

Wrexham was instantly astonished.

"Eh? Come, now—what about your self?"

"Miss Laverne is my friend, captain," he said. "You love her as I do, I perceive—with the love that is permitted any man toward an object of rare beauty, whether it be a woman, a delicate porcelain, or a picture on the wall."

In this tone was a fine irony, which Wrexham could not at all understand. For a moment the skipper was tempted to think that there was something odd and queer about this picture of Aline Laverne—then he forgot the notion instantly.

"What about them questions?" he demanded.

FATHER AND SON WEEK SCHEDULED

November Date Set for Annual National Conference of Father and Son.

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, July 25.—A change in the dates of National Father and Son Week, so as to have the observance center each year around Armistice Day, is endorsed by President Harding in a letter received at the New York offices of the International Committee, Y. M. C. A., which originated the observance in 1917 and whose Boys' Work Committee continues to lead its promotion.

The change from the week of Lincoln's birthday, used for the purpose of the observance until this year, has been made in response to the desire of national and international Sunday School organizations. The president's letter follows:

"My attention has been called to the National Father and Son Movement, which is to be launched during National Father and Son Week, November 11-18. It is a great pleasure for me to commend this movement, which has as its objective to draw together in a more intimate way the fathers and sons of America, and to strengthen and develop this relationship."

"The success of this movement during the past years has won for it a distinct place. Since the movement has become world-wide in character, it is most fitting that it center around the date of world-wide significance, Armistice Day. Surely, the coming generation will need to be constantly reminded of their obligation to help maintain the peace of the world, for which millions of fathers and sons have died in past years."

"It is hoped that all individuals as well as constructive agencies, interested in the boy life of our nation will give this week due consideration and recognition by bringing together fathers and sons in schools, churches, clubs and other places, and assisting the boys of the community to their own inherent right of companionship with their fathers."

GUTHRIE.—A rum runner and the sheriff of Logan county both were surprised in a recent incident. The bootlegger was making a trip to town, his motor car loaded with flugs of whiskey. He met the sheriff on the road, stopped his car and broke the jugs. The sheriff wrung enough whiskey out of a sack to win a conviction in court. He stated he had not suspected the bootlegger until he began breaking the jugs.

MAIN STREET

We have heard that the sugar barons, coal operators and ice cream men belong to the same fraternity.

The annual "wish-you-were-with-us" postcard barrage is taking full effect and is sent to remind us that our vacation is not.

The statesman maintains that genius has its equal parts of sweat, temperament and headliness.

Since we found that the House of David had a baseball team, we know the cause for all the publicity.

The Ford boom is starting off with a long rattle.

Now that the girls are wearing their dresses lower on the neck, we understand there is to be a mass meeting of the mosquitoes of the community, and hymns of praise and thanksgiving will be sung.

The chap who says there is waste motion in all human activity should watch a small boy devour an ice cream cone.

Now that bobbed hair is becoming popular we notice in several barber shops that a Ladies Home Journal is being added to the Police Gazette literature.

Aren't men funny? They wear clothes that cover them from ankle to Adam's apple. They smoke—because they like it. They tie knots that will untie. They know what is trumps and why they played the joker. They wear B. V. D.s and don't roll their socks. Aren't men funny? They are so different from women.

The reason that we sometimes kick about the flowers at funerals is that they are sometimes three days old.

WHAT NEW YORK THINKS OF JACKIE COOGAN

Following the completion of "Daddy," a First National picture which is coming to the McSwain Theatre Friday, little Jackie Coogan, its star, made a trip to New York with his parents. There he received a welcome such as few kings get, and he was the guest of honor at a round of festivities. The hit he made in the Metropolis is illustrated by this account, written by a magazine editor:

"Jackie Coogan gave a party to representatives of the press at the Biltmore Hotel last Saturday, and this statement can be taken literally. It was Jackie's party. He treated his guests to the time of their lives, because in spite of all the success he has achieved, enough to turn the head of the modest grown-up, Jackie is still the most wonderful unspoiled little shaver that can be imagined."

"There are stage-trained children who are clever—lots of them—and usually they give people who know them privately a 'pain.' They strut and boast and imitate, and make themselves generally obnoxious."

Jackie doesn't. He is just a natural, lovable happy little fellow whose expressive face reflects his every thought—a prodigy if you will—but in spite of that a regular boy. And that's saying a lot.

"Jackie did most of the entertaining at his party—sort of ran the show to suit himself, ad libbing his way along in a manner few adults could improve upon."

"The only time he used something that he had 'learned' was when he recited 'Dangerous Dan McGrew' and a couple of other little poems and then he proved that the silver sheet isn't the only place where he shines. He reads his lines like a trouper. Like many a mother thinks of her son, we almost regret that he must grow up. We should like to keep him always—just Jackie."

SCAPA FLOW HULKS TO BE SALVAGED NOW

LONDON.—The German fleet scuttled at Scapa Flow in June, 1919 is to be raised, cut up, and sold for junk. The admiralty has signed a contract with a private company which has purchased part of the sunken ships, and will start operations at once to raise them.

The company is said already to have found a market for the hulks. If the operations are successful, a contract will be signed for the remaining section, which includes the largest of the ships.

The vessels sunk comprise ten battleships, five battle cruisers and 29 destroyers, their total tonnage being about 416,000. The contract already agreed to covers 20 destroyers and one of the battle cruisers.

The vessels were sunk by their crews opening all the sea-cocks and flooding the ships. This will, however, make the work of the salvagers much easier, as it is planned to shut the cocks and pump the water out of the holds.

IDEAL AVERAGE FIGURE

There are some of us that just refuse to have peculiarities! We're average—or so slightly different that we don't notice it ourselves. But very, very few of us are "IDEAL average" by nature. There's always a bit of coaxing to be done—a little rounder curve, a subtly straightened line, a slight restraint, a comforting support. And even if this weren't needed today, it would be needed tomorrow. Time and the ounces never stand still!

With remarkably few bones, and no undue constraint, GOSSARD CORSETS designed for the average figure bring it gently but surely to its ideal perfection.

Are You Average? If so—

"Do you wear them?"

MODERN CHURCH HAS ITS FAULTS

Claim Present Church Too Often Overstocked With Repertoire.

(By the Associated Press)

STOCKHOLM, July 26.—"The modern church is too often overstocked with pulpit repertoire," Dr. J. F. Love, corresponding secretary of the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, of the United States, declared today in addressing the Baptist World Alliance on the Topic "The Home Churches and the Mission Boards Facing the Future."

"We are tempted to talk about too many things which we may well leave to the paragraphs of the newspapers, to the writers of cheap novels, to the politicians and the goodsbox orators," the speaker continued. "Christ crucified for sinners is our message, and this spoken with plainness and passion illustrated in life and ordinance will give us secure mortgage on the future."

"Foreign mission work is the greatest task of our denomination today. The true apostolic succession is not in facing toward the apostles as a guide, but in facing toward a lost world with the New Testament as a chart. We shall ground our witness in a divine authority and make it effectual by making our appeal not to the historic past but to the ever-living ever-present word, and by applying it to the needs and problems which are before us."

"The Baptists of the world today must set themselves to the task of world missions, and in this attitude and endeavor rightly relate themselves to the future or be false to the best things in their history. If we want great churches at home we must set before them great and holy tasks."

"What is the future to be faced? The future before any people is never something which comes from Nowhere. It is always the lengthened shadow or gleam of the past. Today is time's conjunction with which it connects into one sentence of history our yesterdays and our tomorrows. The world faces a future which religion has colored by its failure and its successes, its faiths and its heresies, its deeds and its doctrines. The religious questions, tasks, problems and issues of the future have their pedigree in the religious systems, cults and creeds of the world. The future gives Christianity, therefore an opportunity to correct its own mistakes and benefit by the failures of other religions, and to finish its unfulfilled tasks."

"We must, therefore, in the first place, to deal effectively with the world situation which confronts us, face our future with a spiritual temper, the missionary abandon, the uncalculating faith and the absolute contempt for personal hazard which have characterized the people who in the past have borne our name and by which these have subdued kingdoms and wrought righteousness."

Again, the home churches and boards must dispatch to the foreign fields men with the missionary message and who will wield the sword of the spirit with a gallant courage. We should know this message by heart. If we do not yet know after 2,000 years exactly what the Christian missionary message is, our state is full of pity. We have no mission if we have no message."

LAST TIME TO SEE MIX FILM

Tonight will be the last opportunity to follow Tom Mix through some thrilling scenes in "Stepping Fast," his latest William Fox picture which is at the American Theatre. In this film Tom plays the role of a young cowboy who inherits one-half of a gold mine hidden away in the ruins of the cliff dwellers in the Arizona desert. The other half interest is held by the daughter of the cowboy's benefactor who is in China. He travels to Hong Kong to prevent a band of International crooks from getting the secret of the
